

STATESMAN LEAVES IMAGINARY ESTATE TO RUPPERT HOME

Pathetic Gratitude Shown by
G. E. Harris, Who Died
Penniless.

Pathetic gratitude for shelter and care in his old age, after a brilliant and notable career in his prime, is revealed today in the will of George E. Harris, filed with the Register of Wills. Harris, formerly attorney general of Mississippi and Representative from that State, Mr. Harris died last April, nearly ninety years of age, an inmate of the Ruppert Home for the Aged and Indigent. Although penniless, and even his clothes a gift of charity, the dead statesman made the will devising an imaginary estate to those who had sheltered and comforted him in his old age. After making small personal bequests the will of Mr. Harris leaves the remainder of his estate in equal shares to the Ruppert Home and its matron, Mrs. Herminia Ruppert.

The claim in the Court of Claims is the sole estate of the deceased. This claim is for a share of Indian lands in Mississippi and has been rejected in court as worthless. He acted as attorney for heirs of Indians claiming Government lands in his native State, basing his claim against the Government for his service.

Attorney Meyer Cohen, of Wolf & Cohen, is made executor of the will. "Mr. Harris was very prominent in his day," said Mr. Cohen today. "He gradually lost his fortune and political standing—all but the claim rejected by the Court of Claims as without merit. A rehearing of this claim has been asked before the court of claims, but it is impossible to say what the outcome will be or how much the claim is worth."

Excursions.

An early season rush to Old Point Comfort, Norfolk, and Newport News is reported by the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company. Nearly every night the outbound steamers are crowded.

Queen View, with its fishing, sailing, and surf bathing, is popular with Washingtonians. Many tourists are visiting the historic battleground of the Monitor and Merrimack. Tours from Norfolk to New York and Boston also are being made.

Wolcott Hamer a Victim Of Motor Speed Trip

Automobile owners will drive warily along Bowen road southeast in the light of the experience of Wolcott Hamer, who was fined $10 in District side of Police Court "this morning for over-speeding."

The police have established a trap along the road, and Hamer is the first victim. Policemen C. J. P. Weber and Karl Scherer held stop-watches on Mr. Hamer's automobile over the measured course. They testified in court today that the motor car was going toward the District line at the rate of twenty-seven miles an hour, or seven miles an hour in excess of the limit.

The officers have evidence against other automobile and motorcycle owners. It is expected that other charges will be brought, now that the Hamer case has been sustained.

Gets Ninety Days.

Richard Henson, colored, was sent to jail for ninety days, today, for the larceny of twenty-five pounds of tobacco from the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company. Henson was "caught with the goods" on the street as he was making tracks to sell the tobacco. He was employed by the steamboat company.

"Father" Clark Relieved As Annapolis Chaplain

Chaplain Henry Howard Clark, U. S. N. (retired), who as chaplain of the Naval Academy has looked after the moral welfare of all the officers who have entered the line of the navy for the last several years, has been issued orders relieving him of that duty. Chaplain Clark was ordered to his home in Maine, being permanently relieved of all duty.

He was placed upon the retired list for age—sixty-two years in March, 1907—but he had been so successful in his work at the academy that he was recommended by Rear Admiral Sands (retired), then superintendent, for an indefinite continuation of duty there.

The gospel of "Father Clark" as he is always called by the midshipmen at the academy, has been quoted around the world for years.

His successor has not yet been designated.

Representative Kahn Plans To Reorganize Army

For the purpose of bringing about a reorganization of the United States army, "from the ground up," Representative Kahn of California, and a member of the House Committee on Military Affairs, today declared that he would introduce a resolution in the House providing for a joint Congressional investigation into the military establishment.

Representative Kahn said he had been led to take this course by the conviction that the army bills now under consideration are attempts at piecemeal legislation. He declared today that the enactment of the Hay bills, though intended for economy, would prove most expensive in the end.

Representative Kahn's resolution, which will be introduced this week, will provide for inspection of the army and army posts in various parts of the country.
